Brown Avenue Widened.
Belton, March 20.—Brown avenue formerly known as Crayton street, one of the handiwork resident sections of Belton is being widened by city council. The property owners on this street agreed to give as much of their land as was necessary to make Brown avenue 64 feet wide. It was necessary to remove several trees, which is being done and when the work is completed will add much to the improvement of this street.

Atlanta Letter

Atlanta, March 20.—Under the title "The Next Governor and the Next Senator," Mr. Hearst's newspaper, the Atlanta Georgian, puts itself on record today in a leading editorial as favoring the unopposed return of Senator Hoke Smith to Washington, and the election of John Marshall Slaton either as governor or junior senator, whichever Mr. Slaton decides to offer for.

The paper further states that it will actively support Senator Hoke Smith as senior United States senator, and will actively support Governor Slaton either for governor or for the senatorial office left vacant by Bacon's death.

"The Georgian believes that Senator Hoke Smith by the national influence he has won, has demonstrated that Georgia's national position and power is best served by holding in his place as long as he maintains his present standard of capacity and leadership, and that he clearly and unquestionably deserves an unopposed re-election to his place in the senate."

Of Governor Slaton, the editorial says, "Neither Georgia nor the south has any public man of whom it has greater reason to be proud. He has done great service in an open way to the commonwealth. This newspaper is for Governor Slaton's unopposed re-election as governor, if he should for a second term. Or if Governor Slaton should accept the senatorial chair left vacant by Senator Bacon's death, the Georgian will cheerfully and heartily give him its support for that position, without deprecating in any way the merits and character of the able and useful Georgians who may be his competitors."

Mother Asks $25,000.

Atlanta, March 20.—For the death of John Logan McKinney, fourteen years old, a Journal newsboy who was killed by a street car, Mrs. Julia Blackley his mother, asked $25,000 damages from the Georgia Railway and Power company in the city court Thursday morning.

Mrs. Blackley states in her petition that the boy was carrying $25 per month or more, and that he supported her. She says he was riding on his bicycle to deliver a load of journals, about two months ago, having just left sub-station No. 1, at 495 Edgewood avenue.

She states he tried to turn at Randolph street, when two Edgewood avenue downtown cars, both going over 25 miles an hour, passed. The second one, which he did not see, struck him, mangled him so that he died within a few hours. Negligence on the part of the company is alleged. Atkinson & Brock, attorneys, filed the suit.

"The Call of the South."

Atlanta, March 20.—So illuminating and instructive was the mass of data and information relative to the possibilities of Georgia, the Empire State of the South, contained in the recent special edition of "The Call of the South," that scores of requests have been sent in to the editors to send the issue broadcast over the country. The magazine, which is published in the interest of better literature in the south and the development of Georgia's immense material advantages, will therefore make its appearance shortly in every section of the United States from which Georgia might draw prospective settlers and home-owners.

The special edition was gotten up with the assistance of the Georgia Chamber of Commerce, whose officers and many of its members contributed heavily to its columns. The campaign for good roads, the war on the boll weevil, the movement to extend the state and Georgia grow products, the diversification and marketing of crops and other planks in the state-wide constructive platform of the Sixth Chamber receive expert treatment in the hands of such prominent contributors as Governor John M. Slaton, J. K. Orr, Dr. Andrew M. Soule, Mrs. J. I. Fitzpatrick, president of the Georgia Federation of Women's Clubs, E. H. Hyman of the Macon Chamber of Commerce, Edwin P. Angley, Miss Mildred Rutherford, T. L. Smith, C. L. H. Jones, E. M. Mercer, and a score of others equally well known.

Stamp of Approval for Tanager.

Atlanta, March 20.—The tanager and other modern dances, a conservative form will receive the stamp of approval of the executive mansion and the first lady of Georgia this afternoon when Mrs. John Marshall Slaton, wife of the governor, will give a cabaret tea for the local Chamber of the Daughters of the American Revolution.

Charming Miss Charlotte Meador, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. J. V. Meador, and Percy Angley, son of Mr. and Mrs. Edwin P. Angley, will give a series of exhibition dances, and other well known society people will take part.

In addition to the exhibition dancing, there will be musical selections and readings. While the "Turkey Trot" is a national dance, as they are called, whatever popular with the most element in Atlanta society, the more graceful tango and the hostess waits, as they will be danced at the executive mansion, have been received and given the stamp of approval already in the highest social circles.

Amazon Queen of the Apes, named Lucy, now rules in his section. It all came out when Bill, the biggest ape in the cage, stopped on one of Lucy's sore toes. It angered her so that he had the advantage of her in size and weight. Seeing their former leader beaten to earth the other monkeys looked to the new standard, and now King Bill is in disgrace. He doesn't dare to stand a moment from the smallest she-monkey in the cage, and when somebody hands Bill a slice of orange or banana, Queen Lucy now takes it away from him and throws him the skin.

Honea Path High School.

Prof. Hicks, Messrs. Barding, Waters and Flowers attended the teachers' meeting at Spartanburg this week. The Honea Path high school basketball team went to Williamson last Friday afternoon and played the high school team at that place. Edwards "Monkeys" Outfit.

That there are "monkeys" even among the Atlanta Redskins is proved by the recent capture by officers of the revenue cutter service of a trade whiskey still, says the April Popular Mechanics Magazine. Since the Redskins are wards of the government, it is against the law for anyone to sell or give them intoxicating liquors. By apparently the more interesting of the two, the monkeys are perfectly able to supply the demand for making their own "hot toddy" which is called in the Atlanta tongue. The product of this homemade beverage was almost pure alcohol and was found to be such could have tolerated it. The monkeys who appeared it were sentenced to 30 days imprisonment in the North Jail. Their still, which was found on one of the Diamond Islands, was made from a powder can, a wooden keg and a vile barrel.

For Sensation Visit

The Motorhome.
For the latest thrills and sensations visit the motorhome at Adams' Carnival. The drome is one of the latest design and is the steepest track that has been in the city of Anderson. Two races will be run each going a mile a minute, making the race exciting, passing from the bottom of the track to the top, both at the same time. The track is said to be the steepest that has ever been shown to the public, being 117 degrees on the main track, 100 degrees on the perpendicular track. Both of the riders, Don DeMills and Jack England are of the dare-devil variety, both holding records in the steepest track motorhome circuit for fast riding and for doing seemingly impossible feats while on his track. The motorhome was built by Cincinnati in preparation for the motor home event which was to have been held there in February, but was postponed until a later date. Manager England's home is in Cincinnati, and he claims Pittsburgh as his.
